"POET" DISAPPEARS WHEN AUTHORSHIP IS QUESTIONED

Dorian Hope Dedicates Book to Mrs. Florence Earle Coates, but It Is Alleged He "Borrowed" Material

Dorian Hope, "author" of a book of verse called "Pearls and Pomegranates," which he dedicated to Mrs. Florence Earle Coates, of this city, has disappeared, that is from the literary world, while he left no reason for his going. It is believed that the chief cause of his fading from view was due to the book of poetry.

It appears that Hope, whose real name is supposed to be Fred Holland, was nursing an illusion when he announced the verse as his own. A few days after the book was published Mrs. Miriam Valder, 12 East Nineteenth street, New York, appeared at the establishment of G. P. Putnam's Sons, six of the fifty-eight poems in the Hope collection aggregation were written by her. Several others in the book, she said, were taken from the book of Mrs. Coates, who died last week of Augustin Lardy, who died last week of Augustin Lardy.

The publishers immediately stopped the sale of the book. "There is a possibility that the disappearance of the poet is connected with the fact that he was supposedly working with the book. One of the poems was called 'Away,' and this was dedicated to Mrs. Ellen M. Gates, of New York. It ran: 'I am going away on a journey That I never made before And I must put my house in order And remember to lock the door.' And so he locked the door and went away, no one knows whither."

Mrs. Coates lives at 2024 Spruce street. Commenting on the disappearance of Mr. Hope, she said: "I am sorry to hear that he is in trouble. I knew him only slightly. I have not heard from him since he announced that he had dedicated a book to me."

It was learned today that Hope was sometimes called Sebastian. Mrs. Coates is known throughout the country for her verses. Many of the most prominent persons in modern English literature were her friends. She has entertained Mrs. Humphry Ward, Richard Watson Gilder and others equally well known. She is a member of the Contemporary Club, Society of Arts and Letters and other organizations interested in literary progress.

MRS. FLORENCE EARLE COATES Poems in a published book dedicated to her are alleged to have been "borrowed" from other persons' works by Dorian Hope, who disappeared when his authorship of them was questioned

PRACTICED BUT NOT KNOWN

Ca Canny Another Way of Expressing Term "Soldiering"

What is Ca Canny? Very few persons would recognize this term as probably one of the best known, certainly one of the most practiced of all terms in either the language or vernacular of English-speaking peoples.

Even those who don't understand English understand how to practice this universal art.

This term embodied in a dictionary of labor terminology made public by the Graduate School of Labor Terminology, Harvard University, today means nothing more or less than soldiering, according to the bulletin issued by the school.

Every one who has worked either himself or some one else—knows instinctively what that means. He certainly knows that it is not the act of fighting. It is rather the antithesis of anything that has to do with the work of a soldier.

Some might qualify it as a form of modesty, as the Harvard dictionary defines soldiering as "the intentional failure of an employe to produce the quantity of work of which he is really capable." How great a standing army could be found on this rating?

P. R. T. RENTAL BILL TO RECEIVE BACKING

Business Men to Try to Prevent Blocking of Millar Measure in Committee

Efforts are being made at Harrisburg to block legislation which will lead to investigation of rentals paid by underlying companies to the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., according to members of the United Business Men's Association.

As a reduction of rentals paid by the subsidiary concerns is regarded as the quickest way of effecting a permanent reduction in carfare in this city, there is promise of a lively fight in the Senate when bills concerning the transit situation come up for action.

Supporters of the measure said today they would fight any attempt to kill their bills in committee.

A measure aimed directly at reducing the alleged exorbitant rentals paid by the underlying companies is the Millar bill. This provides that the Public Service Commission shall have power to investigate rentals of the subsidiary companies and where found to be excessive, reduce them. The bill passed finally in the House last week and is now in the Senate.

It has been persistently rumored that legislative friends of the underlying companies will see that the measure is attempted. It is likely, however, that there will be some surprises. To thwart such a trick it is only necessary for a member of the Senate to move that the committee in charge of the bill be discharged from further consideration of it.

Senator George Gray, of the Frankford district, which section is now virtually concerned over the transit situation, asserted that he would support the Millar bill and any legislation which would improve transit conditions.

"I have not heard of any attempt to block this bill," he said, "but I will be on the alert and do all in my power to see that the measure is brought up and passed."

Senator A. F. Dix, Jr., honorary president of the United Business Men's Association, before leaving for Harrisburg today, announced that he would also support the Millar bill. "I am for it to the finish," he said. "It provides a quick solution for the transit problem and should be passed without question in order that the way could be paved for reasonable carfares for the people."

MISSING WOMAN SOUGHT IN VAIN

Swarthmore Searching Parties Find No Trace of Miss Garrett, Noted Friend

Searching parties went out in automobiles today to comb the country around Media and Swarthmore for Miss Anna M. Garrett, fifty years old, and a prominent member of an old family of Friends who has been missing since Friday from her home in Swarthmore.

Chief of Police Hayward, Chief Whitaker, of the Fire Department, and County Constable Henneman headed yesterday also looking for the woman, but found no trace of her.

Miss Garrett is said to have drawn $200 from the First National Bank of Swarthmore on Thursday. It was an unusual procedure for her, according to her neighbors, and is thought to have some bearing on her disappearance.

Friday Miss Garrett left early, saying she was going to the bank again. The bank officials say she was there Thursday, but do not remember seeing her on Friday.

On Saturday when she failed to return home her neighbors suspected foul play and groups of searchers scoured the country for miles in every direction. No clues were found.
